Background:

Surajpur is a predominantly tribal district. With a scattered population and uneven terrains, the rural villages are not in regular touch with the administration as it happens in plain districts. Traditionally the rural folks of the district are shy in nature and prefer to stay away from the outer world, which is sometimes felt as a bottleneck in not only spreading the developmental schemes of the Government across the district, but also in bringing out the hidden talents of the rural villagers to the foreground. Tribes of the district are immensely talented in the art and culture, they are indeed a part of a great culture which is not getting revealed to the world due to their introvert nature.

Chief Executive Officer Janpad Panchayat (Pratappur) Surajpur aims at establishing a sustained two way communication with remote rural community with the usage of mobile communication, internet and Bluetooth technologies.

A well-established two way communication will improve the feedback mechanism for the administration and increase the people participation in development, this will also increase the chances of livelihood in remote rural areas by connecting them with a better market and lead them towards more opportunities.

Tribal community is an oral community, they feel more comfortable in speaking and listening rather than reading and writing. Mobile phones are making inroads even in remotest of the villages, hence mobile community radio looks like an appropriate communication platform for the district. This plan is well executed may give a voice to the presently voiceless remote citizen of the district which will help in good governance and the betterment of delivery mechanism.

Scope of Work:

Evolving of a system where from regular flow of dialogue between the rural citizen of the district and the outer world in general and The District Administration in particular is ensured. This may involve training and deployment of the local youth preferably youth from the remote villages who would go around the villages regularly to record the presentable material like any request, complaints of the villagers to the Administration along with the tribal recipes, knowledge of herbal treatment, folk music etc. Local youth is also needed to be trained in editing, fine tuning and publishing such collection of audios on a public portal which could be accessed by any citizen without any barriers. A mechanism should also be evolved wherein a complaint if redressed amicably by the administration this information shall be passed on to the complaint who might be an interior villagers of the district, and a token of acknowledgement is recorded from the same complaint to complete the desired two way communication between the citizen and the administration.

All this mechanism shall be ensured by developing the necessary echo system by conducting trainings and workshops for the rural citizen and making them confident enough to handle the system independently by themselves.
